

Component-level verification of a metamodel design Jacobian

Reference labels calibrate an intended-use decision; deployment spends simulator calls only on selected components.

Score computation at a deployment query adds no reference call; calibration, verification, and failed-reference refinement do.